

The children were nestled All snug in their beds, While visions of sugarplums Danced through their heads;