

Did you know? Susan B. Anthony was born on February 15, 1820 in Adams, Massachusetts. Each year, February 15th is celebrated as Susan B. Anthony Day to honor this leader, one of the first women's rights advocates. She worked to gain women the right to vote. She died on March 13, 1906, in Rochester, New York. On January 10, 1878 Senator Sargent, a close friend of Susan B. Anthony, introduced into the United States Senate a women's suffrage amendment known as the Susan B. Anthony Amendment. It wasn't until August 26, 1920, 42 years after the amendment was introduced and 14 years after her death, that the amendment was signed into law.
