

The movement of air around the globe is known as the global wind patterns.