

Flag of Suriname

Adopted on 25 November 1975.

Five horizontal bands of green, white, red, white, and green. There is a large, yellow, five-pointed star centered in the red band. The star represents the unity of all ethnic groups, the red stripe stands for progress and love, the green for hope and fertility, and the white bands for peace and justice.