

Maya Angelou

April 4, 1928 - May 28, 2014.

Maya Angelou is an award winning author, actress, screenwriter, dancer and poet. She is well known for the poem "On the Pulse of Morning," which she wrote for, and recited at, President Bill Clinton's inaugural ceremony in January 1993. She is also known for her autobiography "I Know Why the Caged Bird Sings". She was a civil rights activist, personal friend of Martin Luther King Jr (who was killed on her birthday), and won many awards for her writing, acting, and poetry.

Information source: www.biography.com

www.dorkydoodles.com