

The blue-ringed octopus (Octopus maculosus) is normally brown, and about the size of a golf ball. However, when agitated, it becomes vivid yellow with blue rings and spreads to about seven inches. The venom in its saliva can easily kill a human. Some scientists claim that octopuses are the most intelligent of the invertebrates.