

Heart's lineup has changed numerous times, and sisters Ann and Nancy Wilson have been the only constants. Their most famous song, "Barracuda", was written in response to their record label's insinuation that the sisters were lesbians. The label's publicity stunt failed, but classic rock radio stations everywhere are forever thankful for the creation of such an epic song. (Learn more at www.heart-music.com)

