

Lewis and Clark were sent with an expedition to explore the Northwest. Their successful expedition proved that there was an overland route to the west and began a program of expansion that carried the American flag to the Pacific.