

People in many parts of the world have gotten sick because coronavirus spreads easily from person to person.

It can also spread when people touch something the virus has been on, like hands or door handles. This is why you might see people wearing masks and gowns.