

SOUTHERN or CALIFORNIA SEA OTTER
(Enhydra lutris nereis)

Sea otters depend on the nearshore ecosystem for their survival, using their big hind flippers to swim and hunt in kelp forests and even securing themselves with kelp fronds during naps.

Image Credit: Ben Young Landis/Joe Tomoleoni/U.S. Geological Survey

