

Haman, a cruel little man and one of the King's closest advisors was angry that Mordecai wouldn't bow to him. He listed all the "important things" he'd done for Persia, but Mordecai still refused. As revenge, Haman convinced the King to order the death of every Jew in the land.

