

George Washington Carver

1864-1943

George Washington Carver was born to farming slaves in 1864. He was enrolled as the first African American student of Iowa's Simpson College, and earned a degree in agricultural science. Carver developed hundreds of products from farm plants such as the peanut and sweet potato, and was an amazing inventor and scientist.