

On the other side of the lake was their father's cottage. How glad he was to see them! The cruel stepmother had died. The children showed him the precious jewels, and all lived happily ever after.