

Mountain Avens

- The Mountain Aven has small basal leaves and a single white and yellow flower supported on a short stem.
- The Mountain Aven is a hardy member of the rose family that flourishes on high or rocky ground in Central and Eastern Arctic regions.
- It was made the territorial flower of the Northwest Territories in June 1957.