

Rhode Island Red Chicken

- This breed of chicken was developed in 1854 for its eggs and meat and became a major contributor to the poultry industry.
- Males are called roosters and females are called hens. The hens lay brown eggs.
- Adopted as Rhode Island's state bird on May 3, 1954.