

Trojan War, 1194 B.C.—Greek mythology tells us that when Paris of Troy took Helen away from her husband Menelaus, the king of Sparta, the great Trojan War began. In ancient Greece, soldiers would have rode into a war like this on the backs of great warhorses, fully armored and wielding weapons like spears or swords.