

After World War II. soldiers returned to their families and post-war jobs to build a better America.